The Story and You™

Sacred Conversation

Sixth Sunday in Ordinary Time

I imagine this conversation between Jesus and some people at the Women's March in D.C. Jesus: You have heard it said, "Women's Rights are Human Rights." But I say to you, "Yes! Atrocities toward women are the scourge of history. You've brought attention to many, like equal pay for equal work, but there's more. End sex trafficking. Starve the pornography industry, which endangers women and changes the brains of the men who use it. End domestic abuse everywhere. End the abduction of girls and women by groups like Boko Haram and others. Secure safe education for every girl on the planet. That will keep you busy." And I imagined this conversation in the same city at the March for Life the next week. Jesus: You have heard it said, "Life begins at conception." I say to you, "Yes! And it ends in natural death. Redouble your efforts—and you've made some brilliant and creative starts — to provide first-rate prenatal care and labor and delivery for all mothers. Make sure their families have nutritious food and safe, secure housing. Continue to educate about adoption services. Use your lives to lift up those who are poor. Protect the environment. And never, ever let an elderly person feel she has a duty to die. That will keep you busy." "But Lord," I heard both groups cry, "you're asking the impossible! We'd need far, far more people all over the globe to commit their lives to these unsolvable problems. Can't we leave them to the next generation to solve?" "What next generation? YOU are the light of the world," he said. "Go set fire to the earth."

How are you working to solve an unsolvable problem?

La Historia y Usted™

Conversaciones Sagradas

Sexto Domingo de Tiempo Ordinario

Me imagino esta conversación entre Jesús y alguna gente en la Marcha de Mujeres en Washington D.C. Jesús: Ustedes han oído que se ha dicho, "Los derechos de las Mujeres son Derechos

Humanos." Pero yo les digo, "¡Si! Las atrocidades cometidas en contra de las mujeres son la lepra de la historia. Ustedes han llevado a la luz pública muchas de estas atrocidades, como el pago igual por trabajo igual, pero aún hay más. Pónganle fin al tráfico sexual. Lleven a la banca rota a la industria pornográfica, la cual pone en peligro a las mujeres y cambia el cerebro de los hombres que la usan. Pónganle fin al abuso doméstico en todas partes. Póngale fin al secuestro de niñas y mujeres a manos de grupos como Boko Haram y otros. Aseguren una buena educación para cada niña del planeta. Eso los mantendrá ocupados. Y luego imagino esta conversación en la misma ciudad durante la Marcha por La Vida la próxima semana. Jesús: Ustedes han oído que se ha dicho, "La vida comienza en la concepción." Y yo les digo, "¡Si! Y termina en la muerte natural. Redoblen los esfuerzos- y ya han tenido brillantes y creativos comienzos- para proveer cuidado prenatal y partos de primera clase para todas las madres. Asegúrense de que sus familias tengan comida nutritiva y hogares buenos y seguros. Continúen la educación acerca de servicios de adopción. Usen sus vidas para levantar a aquellos que son pobres. Protejan el ambiente. Y nunca, nunca dejen que una persona anciana se sienta que tiene la obligación de morir. Eso los mantendrá ocupados." "Pero Señor," Oigo a los dos grupos que protestan, "¡estás pidiéndonos lo imposible! Necesitaríamos mucha más gente por todo el mundo que comprometa sus vidas a estos problemas irresolubles. ¿Por qué no dejamos que los resuelva la siguiente generación?"

"¿Cuál siguiente generación? USTEDES son la luz del mundo," les dijo. "Vayan y prendan fuego a la tierra."

¿Cómo estás trabajando para resolver un problema irresoluble?
